THE
THOMAS CHARLES MATHIS FAMILY

Thomas Charles Mathis, died in his 75th year, April 22, 1883.

Susanna Quarles Mathis, died in her 56th year, October 11, 1879

Edgefield County, South Carolina

THE ADVERTISER PRESS
Edgefield, South Carolina

The Ancestry of Mathis is derived from many notable strains of pioneer settlers, including Scotch-Irish, Irish, German, Swiss, French Huguenot and English.

At least three families of the Mathis name in France are of very Ancient lineage: One in Normandy, one in Coire, and one ranked as Barons of the Holy Empire, in Artois, Picardy.

As recorded, the old Egyptian saying: "The blood of our ancestors is the prophecy of destiny," gains a personal significance. Inspiration may be drawn from the annals of those gone before, who have lived their lives bravely and well.

INTRODUCTION

It is not known when the family of Thomas Charles Mathis came to Edgefield County, South Carolina. It is not known where he was born. Little is known of his early life, that is before the beginning of his family, his marriage to Susanna Falls Quarles. He may have come to the State with his parents, but we do not know who they were, yet there are many Mathis families throughout the South.

The family settled on Ivy's Island or Skipper's Georgia, which was known as Grant's Township. This area is between Big Stephens Creek and Savannah River, North of Augusta, in South Carolina. The family is better known as residing in the Colliers' community, near the Peace Haven Baptist Church and Cemetery. The property is in the family of Walter Bland Mathis. They own the community store which has been in the family and has been the center of community activities for many years.

He had an unusually large home where he entertained and accepted travelers—many of whom were strangers. Day and night care awaited the weary guests with a welcome of his gracious hospitality in furnishing sufficient food and lodging.

He was in charge of the Home Guard during the war of 1861-65 and was referred to as "Colonel Mathis"; an honor conferred on him because of his position in the community. His integrity as a gentleman was without question and highly respected. Men came to him from all walks of life for advice and council throughout the area.

He is buried in the Republican Baptist Church Yard beside his beloved wife and companion, Susanna Falls Quarles Mathis.

The information in this genealogy could not have been compiled without the cooperation of the many members of the several families of the Thomas Charles Mathis Clan. It is intended to continue research for other family data as this manuscript is incomplete. Therefore any information will be happily received at any time. The gathering of the material has indeed been a joy and pleasure and trust that all concerned will read with the same interest in which it was gathered together.

William Harris Mathis, Sr., son of Daniel Tucker Mathis and Sea Belle Harris Mathis, married Genevieve Sanderson, September 2, 1918, Columbia, South Carolina.

William Harris Mathis attended Georgia Medical College, received the Degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1917; taught school in Edgefield County. He was commissioned a First Lieutenant in the United States Medical Corps, June 1, 1918, and served until February 1, 1919; began General Practice of Medicine in the office of the late Dr. W. T. Briggs. He traveled in rural Edgefield County in a Model "T" Ford car when the weather was good, and on horse back in bad weather, as there were unpaved roads. Hospitals in those days were primarily for the seriously ill or incurable, as modern surgery was in its infancy, relatively speaking. There were no antibiotics at this time.

He moved his family to Belevedere, South Carolina, in Aiken County in 1925, where he practiced medicine. His office was in his home until he opened an office in North Augusta, South Carolina, in 1930. He served the people of the surrounding areas for thirty-seven years, until his death in 1958, at the age of 67 years.
